They were delegated to present this address at a meeting held yesterday, at which there were present several high functionaries, notables and nlemas, including the shiek Et Edwi, hitherto a staunch partisan of Arabi Pasha. The Times, in an article on the attack on Tel El Kiber, says: "It is impossible to conceive of an operation more successful, and the execution in a more masterly manner. The whole plan of the campaign was settled by General Wolseley, with the concurrence of his superiors and hearty acquiescence of his chief advisers, before he left England. There never was any question about the canal being the basis of operations. Before he left England he put his finger upon Tel El Kiber, saying there Arabi would stand, and we should attack him on the 15th of September. We mention the circumstance to show that a great deal which to an outside observer seems chance is really foreseen, observer seems chance is really foreseen, planned or allowed for. General Wolseley

Hundreds of fugitives, including many officers, are surrendering.

ZAGAZIG, September 14—9 p.m.—The English troops are now entering Cairo. General Wolseley to-day, in reply to a deputation of chiefs from Tel El Kiber, who asked that the country be spared the humiliation of a further advance of the British, said he would occupy Cairo to-night, but in a few hours he would dispatch the first train there with troops. The enemy have opened the canal, and the water is coming down rapidly. Orders have been issued that the dykes at Meekr, in Lake Mariotos, be closed.

The conditions of the surrender are not yet known. The general opinion here is that the natives will deliver up Arabi Pasha to the British. The British troops have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to take possession of Kafir El Dwar.
